Geri was just three years old when her mother left her and her father. She spent the next few years living with her grandparents, who loved her dearly but were unable to provide her with the emotional support she needed. Geri longed to know her mother, and she spent countless hours wondering why she had been abandoned.

When Geri was in her early twenties, she finally found her mother. But the reunion was not what she had hoped for. Her mother was a troubled woman who had been struggling with addiction for many years. Geri tried to help her mother, but she was ultimately unable to save her. Her mother died a few years later, and Geri was left to grieve the loss of the woman she had always longed to know.

Despite the heartbreak she has experienced, Geri has found a way to move forward with her life. She has found love and happiness, and she is now a successful businesswoman. But she has never forgotten her mother, and she still longs for the day when she will finally feel complete.

Coming Home is a beautifully written and deeply moving memoir. It is a story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it. It is a story about the power of love, the resilience of the human spirit, and the hope that can be found even in the darkest of times.
