The Spell of the Yukon

*I have tasted the gold, and it is bitter,
I have sailed the seas, and it is salt,
I have explored the forest, and it is dark,
I have camped in the hills, and it is cold,
But the call of the Yukon is a lure that is strong,*

*And it beckons me ever, and ever it calls,
Once more I step into the cold,*

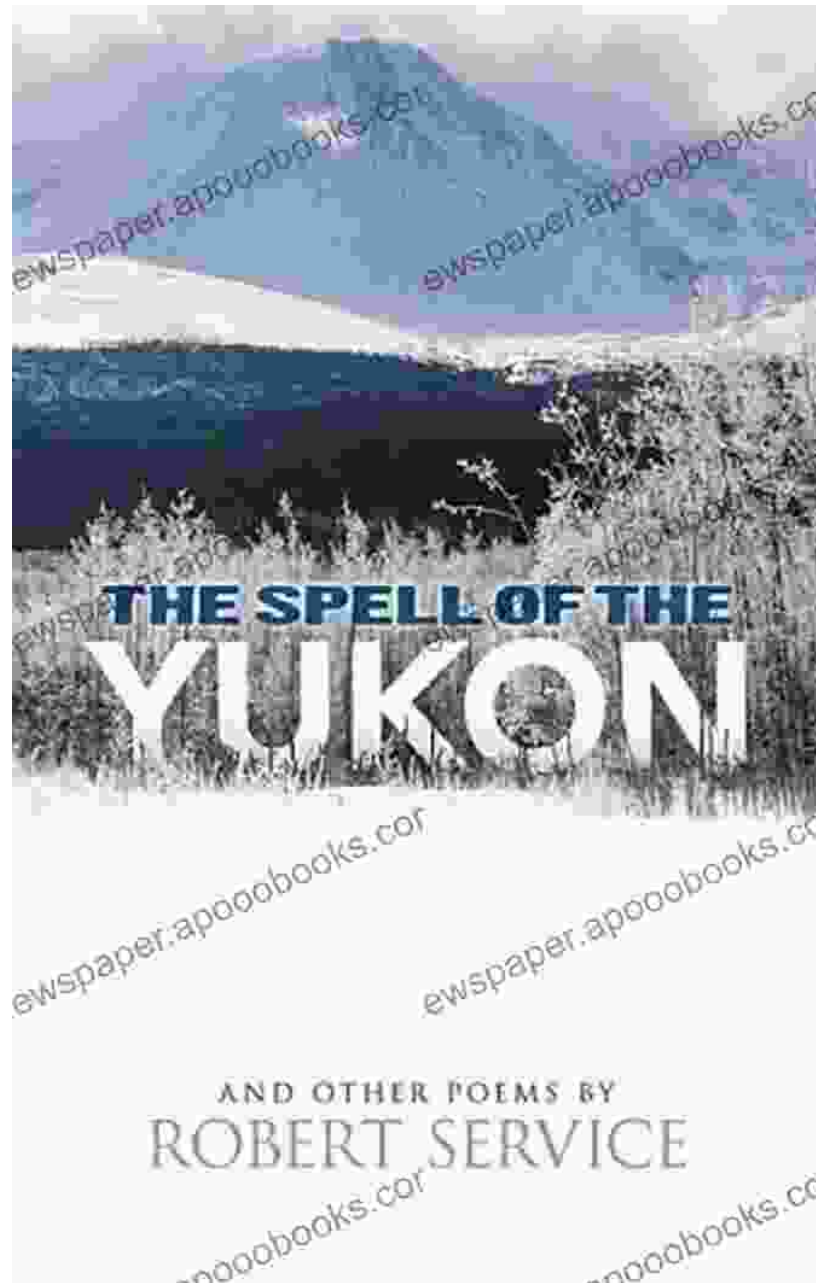

A Symphony of Rhymes

Service's mastery of language is evident in every verse, crafting poems that dance with rhythm and rhyme. His distinctive voice echoes the ballad traditions of the North, capturing the raw energy and folklore of the region.

From the playful banter of "The Rhyme of the Rolling Stone" to the soulful yearning of "The Lone Trail," Service's words resonate with a universal appeal that transcends time and place.
