Bootsy Collins is one of the most influential bassists in history. He has played with James Brown, Parliament-Funkadelic, and Bootsy's Rubber Band. He has also released a number of solo albums. In his memoir, My Bass and Other Animals, Collins tells the story of his life and career.

Collins was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1951. He started playing bass at a young age and was soon playing in local bands. In 1970, he joined James Brown's band. He played on some of Brown's most famous songs, including "Sex Machine" and "The Payback."

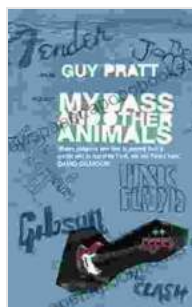

In 1972, Collins joined Parliament-Funkadelic. He played on some of the band's most famous albums, including Maggot Brain and Mothership Connection. Collins also formed his own band, Bootsy's Rubber Band. The band released a number of hit singles, including "Bootzilla" and "Stretching Out (In a Rubber Band)."

Collins has continued to record and perform throughout his career. He has also been inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. In his memoir, Collins tells the story of his life and career with humor, candor, and passion. My Bass and Other Animals is a must-read for any fan of funk music or music in general.
