Immigration

Doe argues that the Obama administration's immigration policies have been a disaster. He points to the fact that the number of illegal immigrants in the United States has increased by more than 1 million since Obama took office. He also argues that the administration's policies have made it easier for illegal immigrants to obtain driver's licenses and other forms of identification, which has made it more difficult to track them down and deport them.

Doe offers a number of specific recommendations for how to fix the immigration system. He calls for an end to amnesty for illegal immigrants, and he wants to see more resources devoted to border security. He also wants to see a crackdown on businesses that hire illegal immigrants.

Trade

Doe also argues that the Obama administration's trade policies have been harmful to the United States. He points to the fact that the trade deficit has increased by more than $1 trillion since Obama took office. He also argues that the administration's trade deals have led to the loss of American jobs.

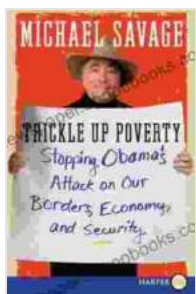

Doe offers a number of specific recommendations for how to improve the trade situation. He wants to see more tariffs on imported goods, and he wants to see the United States withdraw from the World Trade Organization. He also wants to see the United States negotiate trade deals that are more favorable to American businesses.

National Security

Finally, Doe argues that the Obama administration's national security policies have made the United States less safe. He points to the fact that the Islamic State has grown in strength since Obama took office. He also argues that the administration's policies have weakened the military and made it more difficult to fight terrorism.

Doe offers a number of specific recommendations for how to improve national security. He wants to see more resources devoted to the military, and he wants to see the United States take a more aggressive approach to fighting terrorism. He also wants to see the United States withdraw from the Iran nuclear deal.

In this book, John Doe makes a compelling case that the Obama administration's policies have been harmful to the United States. He offers a number of specific recommendations for how to reverse the damage that has been done. This book is a must-read for anyone who is concerned about the future of our country.
