In the wake of the tragic deaths of Breonna Taylor, Sandra Bland, and countless other Black women at the hands of law enforcement, it is time to lift the veil on the hidden epidemic of police violence against Black women and women of color.

This groundbreaking book, written by a team of leading scholars and activists, exposes the harrowing experiences, statistics, and systemic injustices that perpetuate this crisis.

The Harrowing Experiences

Through firsthand accounts and detailed case studies, the book unveils the chilling reality faced by Black women and women of color in their interactions with law enforcement.

- Racial Profiling: Black women and women of color are disproportionately targeted by police, often stopped, questioned, and searched without probable cause.
- Excessive Force: When encounters escalate, Black women and women of color are more likely to be subjected to excessive force, including physical violence, tasers, and deadly weapons.
- Sexual Assault: Shockingly, sexual assault by police officers is a prevalent issue faced by Black women and women of color, compounding the trauma they endure.

The Chilling Statistics

The book presents damning statistics that quantify the extent of this crisis:

- Black women are three times more likely to be killed by police than white women.
- Native American women are more than twice as likely to experience police violence than white women.
- Transgender women of color are disproportionately targeted, with 41% reporting police harassment.

The Systemic Injustices

The book goes beyond individual incidents, exposing the systemic injustices that contribute to this epidemic:

- Lack of Accountability: Police officers are rarely held accountable for violence against Black women and women of color, perpetuating a cycle of impunity.
- Bias in Policing: Racist stereotypes and implicit bias within law enforcement contribute to discriminatory policing practices.
- Intersectionality: Black women and women of color face a compounded risk due to the intersection of race, gender, and other marginalized identities.

Urgent Call to Action

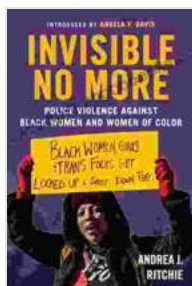

This book is a clarion call for action. It provides concrete recommendations for addressing this crisis, including:

- Increased Accountability: Establishing clear mechanisms for holding police officers accountable for misconduct.
- Bias Training: Implementing comprehensive bias training programs within law enforcement agencies.
- Community-Based Policing: Fostering trust and collaboration between police and the communities they serve.

Police Violence Against Black Women and Women of Color is an essential and timely work that shines a light on a hidden scourge. It is a powerful call to action, demanding justice and accountability for the countless lives stolen and shattered by police brutality.
